TALKING TREES

DMACC Ankeny Campus Psychology Associate Professor Dr. Rosenna Bakari, author of Talking Trees: Breaking the Silence to Restore the Spirit, spoke about adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse during a presentation recently held on the DMACC Urban Campus. Bakari, who was sexually abused starting at the age of seven, spoke about the Talking Trees Project. Talking Trees: Breaking the Silence is an organization dedicated to supporting the healing process of adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse and incest. Bakari said Talking Trees offers support and encouragement to survivors who are ready to live openly. She said survivors who once silently suffered are encouraged to let go of their guilt and shame and stand with other survivors to move humanity forward by shedding light on an ugly issue that plagues our society. She said the shame of incest and abuse must be redirected back at the perpetrators rather than remain lodged within survivors. She cited sobering statistics:

Dr. Rosenna Bakari

- There are well over 50 million adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse in America today
- One in four girls and one in six boys will experience some level of sexual abuse before the age of 18
- The average age of onset for childhood sexual abuse is nine years old
- Ninety percent of children who are sexually abused will know their violators
- Fifty percent will be abused by a close family member, such as a parent or sibling or relative living in the same household
- Only ten percent of victims of childhood sexual abuse will be violated by a complete stranger
- Over 50 percent of childhood sexual abuse survivors will never tell anyone about the abuse

Bakari's presentation will be repeated on the Ankeny Campus on April 16 and the Newton Campus on April 18. Initial counseling services are available for DMACC community members who are affected by childhood sexual abuse. For more information, contact Dr. Barkari at rbakari@dmacc.edu. SAC SPONSORS DIVERSITY SPEAKER

Stan Pearson II of Chicago spoke on "How to Survive Change, Create Culture and Unite the Divide" in a Diversity workshop recently held on the DMACC Ankeny Campus. Pearson used the acronym D.I.V.E.R.S.I.T.Y. to describe direction, information, victory, education, rhythm, silence, integrity, time and you in everyday life and experiences. His presentation was sponsored by the Ankeny Campus Student Activities Council. He later spoke at the DMACC West Campus.

PEDAL CARS TO ZIEGLAR CAT AND IOWA HEALTH DES MOINES

DMACC Auto Collision Repair students made this custom-designed pedal car for Ziegler Cat. Ziegler Cat has been supportive of DMACC by providing scholarships for students and by signing Accelerated Career Education (ACE) contracts with DMACC's Caterpillar Technology program. The ACE program, created in 1999 by the Iowa legislature, provides a funding mechanism to increase capacity and offer new programs to meet the anticipated skill force needs of Iowa businesses. DMACC Program Development Director Michael Hoffman (left) and DMACC Caterpillar Technology Chair Bill Gorman (third from left) present the pedal car to Ziegler Cat Technical Training and Development Manager Paul Anderson and Ziegler Cat Product Support Manager of Iowa Operations Shane Maglothin (right).

DMACC Auto Collision Repair students also made this custom-designed pedal car for Iowa Health of Des Moines. Iowa Health of Des Moines has been supportive of DMACC by providing scholarships for students and by signing Accelerated Career Education (ACE) contracts with DMACC's Health programs. DMACC Program Development Director Michael Hoffman (left), Child Development Coordinator Amanda Magie (second from left) and Sally Schroeder (right), Dean of Health and Public Services, present the pedal car to Joyce McDanel, Vice President of Human Resources at Iowa Health of Des Moines.
